VOLUNTEERS' WITHDRAWAL

Ready to Let 10,000 Foreign Fighters Go

London, Aug. 21.

FOUNDED 1881 No. 15603

General Francisco Franco's reply to the British Note regarding the withdrawal of volunteers from Spain, repeats his acceptance of the principle of the withdrawal of volunteers, but demands, "as a condition and precedent," the granting of belligerent rights "subject to no conditions."

The reply, which is dated August 15, states that in a desire to offer the world obvious proof of its effective collaboration in the laudable efforts of the Non-Intervention Committee, the National Government of Spain is disposed as from now to increase to 10,000 the number of foreigners to be withdrawn immediately, "subject to reasonable and fair measures of reciprocity on the part of the Red faction, and a proper guarantee that neither should return to Spain, and on the basis of the prior grant of belligerent rights."

The Note suggests that the withdrawal by both parties of an equal number of foreign volunteers is the sole practicable procedure.

The Franco Government offers, "as an extraordinary concession, to respect the establishment of two safety ports in the enemy zone in the Barcelona border and in the Levantime area, in order that vessels carrying foodstuffs may enter these ports, provided that sufficient guarantees and vigilance are forthcoming to prevent a perversion of the aim pursued, and that the ports in question within the selected zones are distant from the scene of military operations".

General Franco also offers to cooperate with the object of defining and limiting, as far as may be practicable, the conception of military objects in relation to aerial bombardments, and to regulate this difficult problem with a view to causing the least possible damage to neutral nations and to the Spanish civilian Foreign Minister and son-in-law

Seventeen Japanese heavy bombers, accompanied by pursuit planes, severely bombed Nanhu (South Lake) south of Wuchang at noon to-day.

New Threat To Jewish Refugees In England

WANTED DETAILS GERMANY

Jewish refugees from Germany now living in England are alarmed by the German Government's decree which requests them to register the value. of all their property.

All German emigrants to England who are still registered as German citizens have received this order.

They fear that it will be followed by heavy demands from the German Government on their earnings, savings or investments, and even, in certain circumstances, by confiscation of such property as they still | possess in Germany.

It is estimated that the amount invested by German Jews in England during the past five years is about | £5,000,000. The registration returns must include banking accounts and details of private possessions, such as lewellery and silver.

POSSIBLE CONFISCATION

Two factors strengthen the Germin Government's hand in making this demand:

Fear that refusal to comply with the decree will lead to victimisation of the refugees' relatives in Germany: and

Fear of losing German nationality, which involves confiscation of all property remaining in Ger-

A number of refugees have been considering the possibility of registering only that part of their possessions which is still inside Germany. They realise, however, that withholding of information would ! almost certainly be discovered by the German Government, whose methods in pursuing this inquiry in England have been extremely thorough.

It is understood that information regarding the possible consequences of this inquiry has been laid before the Home Office, which is watching the situation closely In the event of emigrants being compelled to re-transfer their capital to Germany, the basis on which most of them are permitted to stay herenamely, proof of possessing certain means-would be destroyed.

Austria Short Of Doctors

Result Of The Ban

On' Jews

NIO fewer than 147 vacancies for IN qualified physicians are advertised by the municipality of Vienna for various hospitals, homes, asylums, and other institutions controlled by the City of Vienna.

There is actually a famine in doctors in the city where formerly students on qualifying often took jobs as waiters and tram conductors to be assured of a living until they could obtain employment in the hospitals.

The shortage is due to the fact that Jews are not now allowed to practise. Formerly more than half the physicians and surgeons throughout Austria were Jews.

In spite of the strictest possible control of the frontiers, there is still a great deal of sanuggling of paper money and lewellery into foreign countries. When the police raided a PONDENT. flat in Vienna yesterday they found 14,000 marks-over £1,000-in notes sewed up in a sofa cushion, and and about 40,000 marks-£3,000- concealed in other articles which were to be taken abroad.

A Briton, Richard Norman Keys, 22, son of Major P. H. Keys, local businessman, was killed at 1.20 a.m. to-day by a machine gun bullet which struck him in the stomach during a 45-minute engagement between Chinese guerillas and Japanese in the Hungjao area, three miles from the Settlement.

Being a tuberculosis patient, he was sleeping on the roof of his home which is situated only 40 yards from the Japanese headquarters which was one of the guerilla targets.

A most poignant feature of the case was that Major Keys was unable to go to his son's bedside immediately owing to a hail of bullets on the roof and was forced helplessly to watch his son's

The boy was without medical attention for more than an hour owing to the doctor's inability to arrive on the scene as the road was alive with builets while the engagement lasted. It is definitely confirmed that the fatal bullet came from the guerillas, of which there were three bands which took various posts and con-centrated fire on several Japanese targets, one of which was the Japanese headquarters.

The fighting afforded foreigners residing in the Hungjao area a bad three-quarters of an hour. Owing to the closeness of the night, many were sleeping on the roofs and verandahs and the windows smashed.

The Japanese are known to have twenty-four hours later. The funand the windows smashed. suffered some casualties, but they eral will take place this afternoon, are maintaining the closest secrecy the service commencing in the regarding the numbers .- Reuter.

What of the Mother?

As against those pessimists who prophesy the end of the race, there is another school of thought of which the protogonists claim that if the human race continues to increase in numbers there will not be enough food to go round and that diminution will then be compulsory.

It is unpleasant to read that certain European countries are only concerned about their birth-rates because of the numerical lack of man-power for their conscription armies. One answer to their anxiety may be that the new school of military thought belleves that highly-specialised groups are more important than armed masses which have received only a routine training.

When politicians, scientists, and statisticians discuss birth-rate problems they are liable, to lose sight of one very important factor-namely, the mother or possible mother of children.

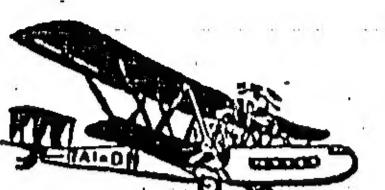

Perhaps if they would give her more consideration they might arrive at some solution of the problem. C. Emsley Duncan.

It was a matter of great disappointment to me on Friday when went down with one of the foulest colds I have had for years and croaked so unmelodiously that speaking upon the wireless was impossible, and I had to call off early in the forenoon. But after seeing the side that the Selectors have chosen I am rather glad as all my analysis of the fourteen—or indeed more at the end—players asked to be in readiness would have resulted in conclusions which would have been utterly incorrect.

Leyland, aged 38, had Barnett is not stated to have dropped been generally thought to have a lot of catches, though we do know that if Edrich had held McCabe in the First Test, England almost certainly would have won. What then is the answer? Has Barnett been dropped because our innings have opened badly owing to Edrich getting out? Well, on those lines Hutton would be dropped because Edrich has failed for the sixth (and we hope the last) time. He will no doubt go on | piling up mammoth scores against the medium and weaker counties but he has not the temperament (spelt properly in four letters) for a big match with really good bowling. It is interesting to note that in Sir Pelham's paper an attempt has been made to bolster up Edrich as a bowler. Sir Home Gordon (aged sixty-seven) - took Woolley very severely to task for not having used him in the Gentlemen v. Players match. But the twelfth Baronet did not even play for his school, according to Wisden, and is only a cricket statistician! I cannot help thinking Woolley knows a bit more about the

Will Football Affect His Appearance In Test?

London, Aug. 3. Much ink has been used this work over the case of Dennis .... Compton and the M.C.C. tour to South Africa. Compton has signed for the football season with the Arsenal and cannot go unless they agree to release him.

There has been some talk of discourtesy on the part of the M.C.C. in approaching the player without first consulting Mr. George Allison, the Arsenal manager. Guildford: Surrey 371 for 6; Hampshire to bat London, July 13.

This was a red letter day for Guildford. For the first time in their history-except for a match at Lord's during the war-Surrey were playing a home fixture away from the Oval.

The compliment paid to the county town was so much appreciated that there were at least 5,000 present, many of whom saw in action players merely names to them.

It was an interesting occasion altogether, for it was the 150th meeting between Surrey and Hampshire and a new scoring board-the most up to date in England-was "unvelled" for the duel.

The board is a big improvement on those elsewhere in this country, but unfortunately, the manipulation of the figures on it were not made as rapidly as one would have liked owing to the sedate methods of the it is partly the Australians' fault in | Wolves Surrey batsmen. #### OUR GUIDE TO THE CINEMAS

"Man-Proof" (King's Theatre, today).-Myrna Loy does not have a happily-married sort of a role in this picture; in fact she is in love with a man who is already married to another. But strange though the role is, she is almost equally at home, and with Franchot Tone, Rosalind Russell and Walter Pidgeon brings off one of the best pictures of the scuson.

"The Mystery of the Wax Museum" (Queen's Theatre, to-day). -There is no need for those who have already seen this picture to see it again. Though remade, it con-picture is now in technicolour. "Oil For the Lamps of China' (Alhambra Theatre, to-day).-A well-known book well-treated and made into a fine screen story. Pat O'Brien, Josephine Hutchinson and Jean Muir have the leading roles. "Hawaii Calls" (Oriental Theatre.

to-day).-Those who like Bobby Breen will enjoy this picture, which takes him to Hawall, where he warbles in his best style. Comic relief is provided by Ned Sparks.

"The Good Earth" (Majestic Theatre, to-day).-One of the most moving pictures ever made. Paul Muni and Luise Rainer handle their parts delicately, supported by Tilly Losch and Walter Connolly.

MESSAGE FOR AMERICA

Asked if she had a message for the American people, Mme. Sun said: "This is what I want to say to the people of America. I know that their sympathy is with China. But do you know that most of the bullets which kill our soldiers at the front, most of the bombs which have fallen on the defenceless population in Canton are made from American scrap metal? The planes which bomb us fly on American oil. Often they have American engines and propellors. Japanese economics, especially her war economics, depend primarily on imports from America. To-day the Japanese are invading our country; to-morrow their planes will fly over the Philippines and their fleet sail off Hawail. Their spy ships have already been detected off the west coast of America. The fact that your Government is building a stronger navy shows that this menace is taken seriously. That menace is largely made of American steel and run on American fuel. Without them it would never exist What are the American people going to do about the kind of "neutrality" that makes these things possible?"

Many great Powers have deemed such to be the case, notably Japan, who recruited husky Northern Chinese coolles, wrestiers, and even bandits to console the widows of those soldiers of Nippon who were slain in the Russo-Japanese War. Italy, Germany, France, Hungary, and Russia encourage fertility by allowances in proportion to the number of children.

History May Repeat Itself

But it is not only the old lands of Europe, fatigued by many wars and eternally harried by economic problems, that are suffering most from what alarmists call race suicide, but also the white populations of Australia. Canada, and the United States. Lands where mixed races prevail have a high percentage of births, notably Brazil.

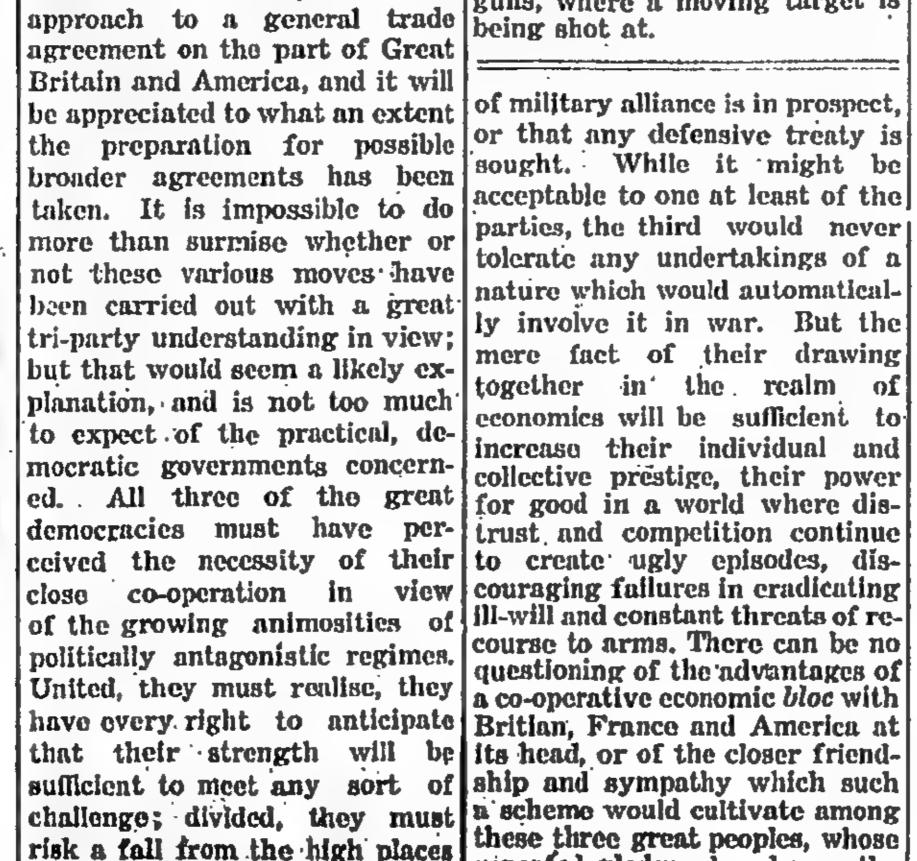

It has been repeatedly said that the Red Indian races of North America were dying out through lack of children. This is untrue. The red man's breed almost died out because of imported diseases, wars, and deprivation of his hunting grounds. But the Red Indian has recovered, and if your Navaho or Apache of to-day does not have us big a family as his grandfather, at least his children

The black legions recruited by Rome have left their stamp all over-Europe, particularly in Southern Italy and part of Spain, and it is not impossible that history should repeat itself, especially in the case of another world confingration.

BATTING STRENGTHENED BUT ATTACK WEAKENED

It was a matter of great disappointment to me on Friday when I went down with one of the foulest colds I have had for years and croaked so unmelodiously that speaking upon the wireless was impossible, and I had to call off early in the forenoon. But after seeing the side that the Selectors have chosen I am rather glad as all my analysis of the fourteen-or indeed more at the end-players asked to be in readiness would have resulted in conclusions which would have been utterly incorrect.

There is another point which old Sir Pelham-true he ... which is probably subsidiary to the only sixty-five-issues his orders. It Edrich-Barnett question. If it is a is notorious that he, is always far question of "youth will be served", more influenced by a handful of runs (though Barnett is only twentywhich he has seen at Lord's than by eight) what about Fagg? He is only a double century elsewhere. It is twenty-three-one year older than the most pathetic side of cricket that Edrich-and he did as well as Edrich ! the great cricketers who stop on in | in the two trials he got with G. Leyland, aged 38, had Barnett is not stated to have dropped | been generally thought to have a lot of catches, though we do know that if Edrich had held McCabe in the First Test, England almost certainly would have won. What then is the answer? Has Barnett been dropped because our innings have opened badly owing to Edrich getting out? Well, on those lines Hutton would be dropped because Edrich has falled for the sixth (and we hope the last) time. He will no doubt go on piling up mammoth scores against the medium and weaker counties but he has not the temperament (spelt properly in four letters) for a big match with really good bowling. It is interesting to note that in Sir Pelham's paper an attempt has been made to belster up Edrich as a bowler, Sir Home Gordon (aged sixty-seven) — took Woolley very severely to task for not having used him in the Gentlemen v. Players match. But the twelfth Baronet did not even play for his school, according to Wisden, and is only a cricket statistician! I cannot help thinking Woolley knows a bit more about the be lucky and Leyland is at present 156 not out. There is of course the After these points, the inexplicable and O'Reilly notably is not so

ANOTHER SURPRISE

This selection of Leyland who has been doing a bit with the ball this year helps to explain, in my opinion, what may very well appear a very daring experiment on the Selectors' part in going into the field with only three regular bowlers. Wright was crocked and the obvious thing seemed to be to bring in Peter Smith of Essex. But the Selectors decided to concentrate on batting as this is a marathon match. I cannot help suspecting that they argued on the lines that even our best bowlers did not seem to worry the Australian cracks overmuch on a good wicket so they plumped for our best three, a fast bowler, a fast medium and a spin, and after that they decided to let batsmen who could bowl a bit help out while the big three were off. Leyland, as a leg spinner, will deputize for Verity while Edrich is pretty fast up and down though not a great performer; while Hammond may be as dangerous as any one. He did not come off in the first Test, and a strained muscle has more or less kept him off bowling since. But if fit, he is very much more than a change bowler.

POSSIBILITIES

Of course these notes are written without knowing the latest details of cricket in England. If as much news was wired out as is about the Yank baseball game we might be in a better position to judge. But, with no special knowledge the two things I do want to know are-why is Bar-

COMPTON HIMSELF WANTS TO REMAIN WITH THE ARSENAL

London, Aug. 3.

Much ink has been used this week over the case of Dennis Compton and the M.C.C. tour to South Africa. Compton has signed for the football season with the Arsenal and cannot go unless they agree to release him.

There has been some talk, of discourtesy on the part of the M.C.C. in approaching the player without first consulting Mr. George Allison, the Arsenal manager. # Graduate

THE suggestion made at a recent L conference of Education Authorities that financially assisted university students should have their grants continued for a year after graduation in order that they might be able to look around for employment in complete freedom, calls nttention to the difficulties which graduates experience nowadays when they bring their hardly acquired degrees to the job markets. The transition from a completely sheltered and care-free way of life to the prosale business of getting a foot on a ladder that is already overcrowded is none too easy. At the university doubts as to the future rarely trouble the student's mind. The university goes on KOBE serenely nursing the old traditions In a changing world, and the student naturally absorbs the comfortable idea that he is a privileged person and that a degree is a safe passport to a good job.

When he finds that even in such professions as teaching, where he is spared competition from nongraduates, he will be lucky if he lands a job within twelve months after completing his professional training, and that for any other kind of job his degree is actually a disadvantage, he is apt to feel like the boy who jumped from the window, expecting his father to catch him, but was allowed to fall in order that he should learn the lesson that he should trust nobody.

The proposal is certainly a humane one as it would tide the impecualous graduate over the difficult period when he is trying to find his feet in the world of affairs and, incidentally, learning the disheartening fact that employers are singularly chary of giving the graduate a chance. They seem to cherish the erroneous Idea that he expects to step straight away into a director's job, and that he will not take kindly to the routine and discipline of commercial life.

A Year of Job-Hunting

Here is the story of my first year's experiences job hunting after taking an Arts degree. The story is one of gradual disillusionment. Full of high hopes I sent away applications for jobs for which considered my degree qualified me, and I assiduously replied to the newspaper advertisements, and with monotonous regularity I received the coldly polite intimation-"Your hpplication has been noted," After carrying on for a few baffling months, like this, without making any headway I began to see that ! stood no chance of getting a job that would not make the four years I had spent at the university a ridiculous waste of time because I had no experience, and without a job there was no way of gaining the necessary experience. There was one bright feature. I had played the saxophone in a students' band, and I was able to turn this somewhat unacademic activity to account and make myself independent of my parents when I got a job playing in a local dance hall in the evenings,

One day I received a letter from a society that maintains an information bureau and ghost writing service for professional people. I attended the interview confident that here at last was my big chance, but the society had no desire to secure my services for their inside staff, and were merely on the lookout for a representative with the necessary academic polish to canvass for mem-

My spirits drooped when I learned this, but, reflecting that salesmanship is the occupation to which everyone without specialised experience inevitably gravitates nowndays, I decided to have a shot at it. But it was difficult going. The RAJPUTANA society appealed to a very few RANCHI people, and not all of them could afford the luxury of membership, and I soon gave it up as uneconomic, and I enrolled in a business college to take a course in shorthand and typing. On the strength of this, aided by some influence which I was glad to make use of, I secured a clerk's job in the administrative office of a semi-public institution at the salary of £2 15s a week.

Waiting for Something

Now , let me consider the other graduates in my class. The majority of them passed by an almost inevitable transition to the training college. They are putting in another year at professional study, and they have yet to discover what value the world puts upon their academic attainments. What of those who CARTHAGE never had any call for teaching, or SOUDAN who flinched before the ordeal of SANTHIA, training college and selection commillees? One man, encouraged by successes. In the university magazine and local papers, thought he might make a name for himself in free lance journalism if he went to London and the centre of things. He soon found that the Street of Adventure would have none but unpleasant ones for him, so he forsook the army of unemployed journalists and returned to the university to take the divinity course. Another, rather than continue indefinitely to be a burden on, his taken a library job, commencing and culture. The universities have eventually make a living out of it.
